New publication: Der Konflikt in Rakhine und die humanitäre Notlage der Rohingya

25.07.2018 - Staatenlos: Der Konflikt in Rakhine und die humanitäre Notlage der Rohingya by Kristina Roepstorff

In her recent contribution to the ›Friedensakademie-Blog‹ (<http://friedensakademie-blog.eu/>) of the ›Peace Academy Rhineland-Palatinate‹ (<https://www.uni-koblenz-landau.de/de/friedensakademie>), Academy for Crisis Prevention and Civil Conflict Transformation, PACS lecturer Dr. Kristina Roepstorff examines the structural discrimination and the humanitarian consequences of the ongoing Rohingya crisis. Cox's Bazar in Bangladesh is the world's largest refugee camp. Around 1 million of the 1.5 forcibly displaced Rohingyas are living there. The Rohingya crisis demonstrates the consequences of statelessness. The United Nations and human rights experts describe Myanmar's treatment of its Muslim Rohingya minority as a textbook example of ethnic cleansing.
